

PSG Exco Message

Warm welcome to Parents of Thoughtful Leaders,

As our children transition from primary to secondary school education, it is a new milestone for them. The demands for them are great, with changes in school curriculum, assessment framework and environment. On top of that, they need to start making friends in new social circle. We, as parents, are stepping into the new milestone with them as well.

There has been tremendous amount of research and studies on the positive impact of parent-school partnerships, especially children in their teenage years. Both parents and school have a common goal - to facilitate the best educational and holistic experience possible. It is vital for parents and school to work closely together to be our children's moral compass and beacon, providing them guidance to navigate the challenges to come. Swiss PSG believes that by being actively involved with the school initiatives and through working closely with our children's educators, we can help our children excel and realise their full potential.

As supportive partners, Swiss PSG promotes collaborations between the parents and the school, plans and implements programmes to support the moral and holistic development of our children. Swiss PSG also plays a crucial role in connecting the school with parents. At the same time, we can support other parents in their parenting journey.

Together in alliance with our children's educators, we are able shape and guide our children to be passionate learners and thoughtful leaders.

Best Regards,

Swiss Parents
